

Punctuation Mark March

March! March! I have a friend Punctuation Mark.

That's right. I'm Punctuation Mark.

He's used with letters and has no sound.

That's right. I'm punctuation Mark.

With punctuation Mark, let's march around.

I can be a dot and nothing more.

To end a sentence, put a dot.

It's called a period.

Push your fist out to show the spot. (2X)

John likes his dog. Pop!

If you have a question to ask,

There's something you want to know.

Draw a question mark,

A squiggly line with a dot below.

Wiggle your body and stomp for the dot below. (2X)

What time is it? (Wiggle and stomp)

March while I name some others for you.

Commas, colons, dashes and apostrophes too.

Hyphens, parenthesis, semicolons.

But not in this song. We're learning sentence enders. Please sing along.

Let's sing about sentence enders with you.

For intense emotion or surprise,

I mean like a sensation.

Draw a line with a dot underneath.

That's an exclamation.

Stand up straight, with wide eyes, an exclamation. Look at that bright star!

Stand up straight. Wide eyes!

My name is Punctuation Mark.

Which mark will you choose? Question mark.

You've done really well! Exclamation mark.

Use a punctuation mark.

That's right, I'm punctuation Mark. Period.
